Instructions

To the purchaser

If you are purchasing promotional materials, or services relating to promotional materials, you must complete this form and give it to the vendor to certify the percentage of the purchase that is exempt from sales tax. Promotional materials include any advertising literature such as catalogs and brochures, and related tangible personal property (for example, annual reports, complimentary maps, other free gifts, applications, and order forms), and the envelopes used exclusively to deliver the promotional materials. Account statements, invoices, or the envelopes used to deliver them are not promotional materials.

Purchaser's sales tax vendor ID number

If you are registered with the Tax Department for sales tax purposes, you must enter your sales tax identification number on this form. If you are not required to be registered, enter N/A.

Percentage

Enter the percentage of the purchase that qualifies as tax exempt for each category of exempt promotional materials and services you are purchasing. If you estimate too high a percentage as exempt, you must pay tax on the portion that turns out to be taxable. If you marked an X in the Blanket certificate box, you should periodically review the percentage(s). If any percentage changes, you must issue a new blanket certificate. The new blanket certificate covers subsequent purchases, and remains in effect until the percentages change again and you issue a newer certificate.

If you cannot, in good faith, determine the exempt percentage, you must pay tax at the time of purchase and request a refund.

Part 1 — Purchases of promotional materials

Printed promotional materials include any printed materials such as catalogs, literature, and related tangible personal property (such as complimentary maps, applications, and order forms), and the envelopes used exclusively to deliver the promotional materials.

Part 2 — Purchases of services to exempt promotional materials

Other purchases exempt from sales tax include information sold in the form of printed matter relating to mailing lists, including merging names, labeling envelopes, and similar services when sold in conjunction with qualifying exempt promotional materials.

Part 3 — Purchases of the service of storing exempt promotional materials

The purchaser of promotional materials exempt as described in Part 1, paragraph A or B, may also purchase certain storage charges exempt from tax if the charges are for storing exempt promotional materials and the storage is provided by the same vendor who sold the exempt printed promotional materials, or by the same vendor who rendered exempt services to the promotional materials, as described in Part 1, paragraph D or E. Storage of other promotional materials is taxable.

Part 4 — Purchases of mechanicals, layouts, artwork, etc.

Paper, ink, artwork, mechanicals, and other supplies that you purchase and furnish to the printer are exempt if the printer uses them to produce and sell to you promotional materials exempt under Part 1, A or B.

For more information on the production and use of promotional materials, see TSB-M-97(6)S, Expanded Sales and Compensating Use Tax Exemption for Promotional Materials, and TSB-M-01(4)S, Summary of Recently Enacted Sales and Use Tax Legislation.

Exemption of free gifts

Free gifts are not exempt promotional materials unless one of the following applies:

- they are shipped out of state, or
- they are printed materials or promotional materials upon which producing, fabricating, processing, printing, or imprinting services have been directly performed and the purchaser of the gifts mails or ships them, or causes them to be mailed or shipped, to its customers or prospective customers, without charge to such customers or prospective customers, by means of a common carrier, United States Postal Service, or like delivery service.

To the vendor

The purchaser must give you Form ST-121.2 with all required entries completed no later than 90 days after delivery of the property or services sold, or the sale will be deemed to have been taxable at the time of the transaction. If you receive the certificate after 90 days, both you and the purchaser assume the burden of proving the sale was exempt, and we may require additional substantiation.

In addition, if you fail to collect tax as a result of accepting an improperly completed Form ST-121.2, you become personally liable for the tax, plus any penalty and interest due, unless the certificate is corrected within a reasonable period of time or you otherwise prove that the transaction was not subject to tax. You must keep any exemption certificate you receive for at least three years after the due date of the last tax return to which it relates, or the date the return is filed, if later. You must also maintain a method of associating an exempt sale made to a particular customer with the exemption certificate you have on file for that customer.

If the Blanket certificate box is marked, you may consider this certificate part of any order received from the purchaser during the period that the blanket certificate remains in effect. However, each subsequent sales slip or purchase invoice based on this blanket certificate must show the purchaser's name and address and, if applicable, the NYS sales tax ID number. A blanket certificate remains in effect until the purchaser gives you written notice of revocation, or you have knowledge that the certificate is false or was fraudulently presented, or until the Tax Department notifies you that the purchaser may no longer make exempt purchases.
